

LAURYN EAGLE

“I was a bit of eye candy for the boys, so I want to step it up from there.”

which I'd always loved at school. I thought it would give me credibility in the business area. I really need a degree, though – you need one nowadays.

What do you want to do now you're back skiing?

I want to go to Dubai and set a record going around The World (artificial islands in the shape of the continents). They love offshore racing and they've got a fair bit of money to help me do it – it costs a lot. And maybe do little record attempts in the US.

Do you do anything even slightly unhealthy?

Someone told me to dip fries in a McFlurry. Oh, it's amazing. It's a pretty big weakness.

Are we going to see you on TV? You did a show called Ra on Fox.

That was awesome and good practice for me. It was a good starting point but I was a bit of eye candy for the boys, so I want to try to step it up from there.

Come on, you were actually presenting it.

...In a bikini, yeah. I'd love to get a job on mainstream TV presenting sport. That's why I want to focus on my skiing and get credibility there. I just love sport in general, it's not just skiing. But I'm realistic and know how narrow the doorway is. I'll try my hardest but I'm not going to wait on it.

Are you still skiing from Newcastle to Sydney?

It's in the works but it's hard. Dad and I planned to do it about three years in a row but our schedules got in the way. After he passed away I said now I'm going to do it. So I'm definitely doing it in May but with the economy at the moment, sponsors are committed elsewhere and I can't do it on my own (if you want to help Lauryn in her record attempt, email her at: lauryn.eagle@optusnet.com.au).

Do you wish you were in a sport that paid more?

(Laughs) Yeah, definitely. My kids will play tennis.