SPORTGASMS

Is sport really better than sex? By the looks of the dials on some stars, it must be close

That's Not Normal
Andy Murray celebrates at the Oz Open by showing us his double-decker mouth.

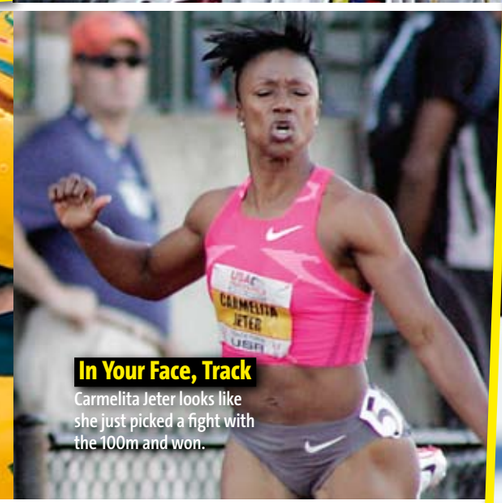
Strike One
A wicked pitch from the Orioles' Jeremy Guthrie leaves A-Rod looking like the Queen chopping wood.

Give Me an O
As in, "Oh, thank God we won," after Henri Pernia's Venezuela beat Tahiti in the Under-20 World Cup.

Winners Are Shouters
Even in Jamaica they can hear Shelly-Ann Fraser just won World Champs 100m gold.

Kill-Shot
If the ball was a person, it would be dead, after Melanie Oudin finishes with it.

Happy Slap
Mitchell Johnson takes a vital one-day wicket. His teammates rub it in.



In Your Face, Track
Carmelita Jeter looks like she just picked a fight with the 100m and won.

Drama Queen
Porto's Radamel Falcao makes a song and dance about hacking his shot wide of the Maritimo goal.

Dog In A Wind-Tunnel
Marcos Baghdatis goes all Snoopy after a point gets away from him. Fetch!

Zombie Footballer
One thing about the undead: they never stop trying, as Juan Sebastian Veron proves here.

"I Want My Mum"
Gushing blood, and with someone's head in his ear, cage fighter Mac Danzig takes a moment to wonder if he shouldn't have been a librarian instead.

Chew Must Be Kidding
Robinho's frustrations at Manchester City continue against Hull. Never mind, Robbie: it'll soon be over.

Suck It Up
After 5km of open-water slog at last year's World Champs, Italian Luca Ferretti and German Thomas Lurz feel the pain.

"Quiet. Thinking"
Triple jumper Li Yanxi is either considering yardage and wind direction, or he's channeling Popeye. Probably the Popeye thing.

PHOTOGRAPHY: GETTY IMAGES (BAGHDATIS, FALCAO, MURRAY, SWIMMERS); PICTURE MEDIA (FRASER, JETER, JOHNSON, MILLER, OUDIN, PERNIA, ROBINHO, RODRIGUEZ, VERON, YANXI).