NAME / NATASHA DILLON
FROM / SYDNEY
AGE / 26

HOW was the shoot?

It was excellent. The only thing was we had to kneel for about an hour and our knees were just about paralysed. And I cut my foot open.

You did what?

I had to entwine my leg around the girl in the middle and actually cut my foot open.

So modelling is a dangerous business. People don't realise.

It's not as glamorous as people think. But it was worth it.

Have you ever woken up with someone you don't remember going to bed with?

Umm... it's not so much that I didn't remember going to bed with them. I remembered, but I just couldn't believe it in the morning.

Had you done anything?

No. He tried very hard, but I was feeling quite hungover and sick.

Is it possible for people who aren't models and celebrities to talk to you in a bar?

Yeah, definitely. Most of my friends aren't models anyway. Everyone always says to me I'm very down-to-earth. I work in hospitality as well, so that keeps you grounded.

Have you ever been cracked onto by a celebrity?

Yes. Ben from Big Brother asked me out to dinner and I told him I couldn't because I have a boyfriend.

What have you been up to apart from modelling?

I'm actually in the new Star Wars. I'm what they call a twi'lek. It's a monster.

How much of a monster? Are you covered in scales and stuff?

No, we're just body-painted. I'm green. The other girl is blue.

Did you get to meet the stars?

I said hello to Jimmy Smits and Samuel L Jackson. They came to watch us getting body-painted.

I'll bet. Did you meet George Lucas?

Yes. I asked him for an autograph for a friend.

What's the strangest place you've had sex?

On a cliff.

What was the best thing about it?

That we might get caught.

DO YOU still hold the short-course world record you set in 2001?

No. It was a 12-year-old record and it was broken within two hours by a British girl, Sarah Price.

Bigger that. Why do all swimmers seem to start training at 4am?

We're a little bit more civilised in Sydney.

So you get up at half-eight for a latte, do you?

[Laughs] We have an older, more elite squad, so there are no kids going to school, but people going to uni.

Do you concentrate the whole time, or do you drift off and bump your head sometimes?

No comment. It was a long time ago...

How hard is it to judge, being on your back?

Well, when they move the flags, it's extremely hard.

Is that something they do as a joke?

They just didn't think one time. We were doing hard finishes into the wall for biomechanics... they moved the flags and I got severe concussion.

Where do you train?

At Sydney University pool.

Can you describe the ceiling there?

Yeah – it's old and it's got these windows and corrugated iron.

You must look at that a lot.

I can describe ceilings from all over the world.

Women's tennis is said to be full of lesbians. Is swimming the same?

No, not really. There's not very many.

But there are some.

It's very straight, very conservative.

That's disappointing. Tell us something unusual about yourself.

I was in the circus. Weren't expecting that, were you? It was the Flying Fruit Fly Circus. It was quite cool. My discipline was the rope. I'd climb the rope, and once I got to the top, spin around really fast.

Aerosmith reckons sex is like a gun.

What do you think it's like?

[Laughter] Um...

Is it really like a gun?

That must be really quick. I don't know how to describe it. It's good... it's great.
