

Tall order

eight-dollar barber haircut, your five-dollar pack of Bonds undies... Eight dollars wouldn't even cover our nail polish.

What do you get for all this money?

The funny thing is, the more money you spend the less fabric you get.

It looks good, though.

And feels good, too. To know you're wearing a gorgeous set of underwear beneath your clothes is very sexy.

If you don't know her size, is it better to go bigger or smaller?

Smaller. If you go big, she'll think you think she's fat. If my boyfriend came home with a size 16 pair of pants, I'd get very upset.

If he were to get you size 16, he couldn't have been paying attention.

He couldn't have, could he? I'd have to start turning on the lights a bit more often.

"LOTS OF WOMEN FEEL FUNNY GOING INTO SEX SHOPS"

Longtime from Elva McPherson from Myer, Berkeley, CA

“I ALWAYS FEEL LIKE SEX.
I’M NOT A NORMAL WOMAN”

Is it true you were in the Victoria’s Secret lingerie catalogue?

No, I was the Victoria’s Secret New Year’s Eve Girl in 2000. For the millennium, they broadcast over Times Square [in New York] myself and three other girls. I was in the 10-million-dollar bra and underwear.

Why was it worth that much?

It’s made of diamonds.

How did it feel?

Heavy.

Did you feel like sneaking off while wearing it and not coming back?

I wouldn’t see the point of owning it.

Did you feel like you were going to get mugged for your bra?

No – we filmed it in a nightclub in the middle of the day about a month before. Just myself, the camera crew and six or seven security guards.

Buying lingerie is foreign territory for most guys. They have no idea where to start.

I had a friend who would walk into the lingerie store and put his hands round the cup of the bra, and say, “OK, that seems right”.

Did that work?

I never asked his girlfriend. But it’s the same with woman and sex shops. A lot of women feel funny going into sex shops.

Are you fine with popping into the sex shop for a stock-up?

I’m not – I get very embarrassed. I have to go with a girlfriend.

The price of lingerie comes as a shock, too. Guys’ undies don’t cost nearly as much.

Guys get a good deal all round. You get your think they look good, then no-one else has to tell me.

What is the correct reaction, then, when a woman asks whether her arse looks big in something?

If my arse was big, I’d want to be told.

Most blokes who say yes would get decapitated.

I’m not saying I’ll go, “OK, thank you, honey,” but I’ll definitely go, “OK, I’m changing my pants.” And I’ll probably never wear those pants again.

Why don’t men ask questions like, “Does my stomach look big in this?”

I know. I don’t think I’ve ever asked the question, “Does my arse look fat?”

What do you ask?

Oh... probably, “Are these shoes too high?”

And men will say, “The higher the better.”

I’m six-foot-two [188cm], so if I ever wear the shoes I like to wear – 4in [10cm] heels – we’ve got problems.

That would make you six-foot-six [198cm] in heels. I’m just going to think about that for a second.

Before you ask: no, I don’t get hit on a lot.

That was my next question.

But why? Why don’t people approach me?

Because you’re so incredibly tall. They think you won’t be able to hear them.

I used to date a basketball player in New York. He was my height. But I’ve also dated a guy who came up to my breasts, which wasn’t that bad, either.

Did the short guy go round with a really big smile on his face?

He didn’t complain.

What’s the downside of dating someone that short?

I become too dominating. They have to have a really strong personality to control me. [That’s why] I always date someone older than myself.

Are you out of control?

No. I’m just very opinionated and very confrontational.

Blimey.

I don’t mean arguments, but I definitely like people who speak their mind. If you speak your mind to me, and you’re honest, I’m not going to scream back at you for being that.

Women seem to be a lot more complex than men.

Men are just as bad.

But you can’t ask two women the same question and get the same answer back.

You can’t with men either, unless it’s about sex.

Exactly. Sometimes women don’t feel like sex, but if a man turns down sex, he must be dead.

That’s true. I always feel like sex, too. Like I said, I’m not a normal woman.
