

Boys' toys

Know the DRILL

CALL it DIY or call it mindless destruction, but take your weekend fun to a new level with the Panasonic Cordless Drill and Metal Cutter kit. The drill can reduce masonry to Swiss cheese in minutes using a hammer-action cam mechanism, while the metal cutter will see off large chunks of plumbing and other metal things you want to put out of business. Kit price (including battery and charger) $949, call 13 26 00

What a DISPLAY

IT'S worth chopping an extra big hole in the Beemer's dash for this baby. Pioneer's FH-P6600 in-car CD/cassette/radio player has a massive easy-read display, and the CD player has a scrolling title facility and memory for 48 discs. It comes with a remote control, so you're not forever leaning way over in the driver's seat like a bullet-dodging crim. $1699, call 1800 060 852

NET walker

ONE day, Sony will make something so small we won't even know it's there until the music starts. Meanwhile, we have to make do with this 33g, cigarette-lighter-sized monster. The Network Walkman E3 is a digital-music player that lets you download up to two hours of music files from the Internet, and it supports both MP3 and WAV files. You can even record from that old format, whatever it is... oh yeah, CDs. $749, call 1300 137 669

Photos > Richard Mortimer