

Boys' toys

↑ ICE CARVER

BURTON has produced the Junk Yard, a skateboard for the snow. Otherwise known as a snowdeck, the Junk Yard looks like an inbred snowboard that came out part ski and part skateboard. Built for a half-pipe, the best thing about it is the lack of bindings, allowing for skateboard-style tricks (such as breaking your ankles). $299 Call (02) 9935 9090; NZ (3) 3736 005

← IMAGING THAT

WITH the digital camera frenzy created by, er, magazines, it's easy to forget that most people still drop off their film at the shop and, while waiting for it to develop, hang around newsagents reading about digital cameras. Nikon's F55 is an affordable 35mm SLR which packs a variety of juicy focus, metering and other options into a very tidy (camera-shaped) package. $599 Call Nikon on (02) 9390 0210

↓ FIGHTING TALK

THE Ericsson T65 is a true fighter. It trained intensively in the ancient arts of Internet access and picture-based prompting until it could kick all the other phones' butts. Just the sort of device you'd want to have on you in a dark alley. $589 Call Sony Ericsson on 1300 650 050; NZ 0800 100 150

↑ USB IMPRESSED

THE portable USB Drive is so small, it must have spent a good portion of its upbringing in freezing cold water. Luckily, when it comes to storage space, it's well-endowed. The drives range from 16MB to 1GB. Prices from $99 to $2365 Call USB Drive on (03) 9526 8924

← WRIST FLICKER

CASIO has designed the prankster's weapon of choice, a remote-controller watch that works on almost any TV. The CMD 40-1T allows you to do tricks like accidentally switching off your neighbour's TV while you're trying to use the stopwatch. $269 Call Casio on (02) 9370 9100

Photos > Richard Mortimer